Margins Are the Whole Story. Adj EBITDA margin fell to 12.4% from 18.6% and GAAP gross margin printed 10.8%. Management lifted the FY2026 revenue guide to $880-900M while cutting the margin guide to 16-18% from the 20%+ set in Q1, and EPS of $0.26 missed consensus of about $0.47. The market prices -20.2% implied revenue CAGR, below the 6.0% bear case.

272% Upside If Execution Holds. At $13.69, DCF base $50.90 implies 272% upside and forward P/E is 4.5x. Distressed pricing for a growing business, but thin cash flow conversion is the sword of Damocles until margins recover. The discount opened on credibility, not demand: the June secondary offering sold 4.6M shares at $73.00 weeks before the margin guide came down, and the selling has continued through two acquisition announcements since.

Mechanics are explicit. The bridge runs revenue to EBIT to cash taxes, then adds back D&A and subtracts capex and working-capital investment to reach unlevered free cash flow. Targets are divided by diluted shares outstanding.

The franchise deep dive

FY2026 revenue guide lifted to $880-900M, including the ALGC acquisition contribution

Self-performing civil and site development model across high-growth Southeast markets

The FY2026 adjusted EBITDA margin guide was cut from the prior 20%+ target; Q2 printed a 12.4% adjusted EBITDA margin

Hughes Brothers, if it closes in Q4 2026, adds $220M of TTM revenue at a 25.0% adjusted EBITDA margin and about $350M of backlog in Central Florida

Seven insiders bought 221,597 shares for about $8.5M in the open market on August 14-17, 2026, led by CEO Jeremy Spivey with 83,350 shares

DCF Base $50.90

NTM EV/EBITDA 3.5x

272% upside to the base case. But the reverse DCF implies -20.2% revenue CAGR: the market is pricing contraction, so the discount may be earned, not gifted.

Heavy civil/infrastructure peers trade mid-single-digit EV/EBITDA

CDNL screens at or below peer multiples despite a faster revenue trajectory. Peers are larger, less leveraged and more diversified, which justifies some discount.

Stock $13.69 vs 52w high $96.40

Down roughly 84% from the high as margin compression and acquisition digestion reset expectations. Limited public history makes historical comparison thin.

What to monitor

Nov 2026. Q3 2026 Earnings (Two-Sided): Adj EBITDA margin was 12.4% in Q2 vs 18.6% a year ago. Recovery toward the 20% target is the entire bull case test.

2026. ALGC Integration (Two-Sided): Acquisition closed Feb 18, 2026 and drives the $880-900M revenue guide. Execution and margin accretion are unproven.

2026-2027. Southeast Infrastructure Cycle (Positive): Civil and site development demand across high-growth SE markets supports backlog, but is cyclical and weather-exposed.

Q4 2026. Hughes Brothers Close (Two-Sided): The $357.5M deal adds a Central Florida platform and 5,255,420 shares at a $27.21 contractual price, plus an earnout of up to $162.5M. HSR clearance is pending.

2026-2027. Securities Litigation (Negative): Three firms have announced investigations tied to the June secondary offering and the margin disclosures. A filed complaint, or a quiet close to the inquiries, moves the overhang either way.

However, disclosures reveal significant insider liquidity surrounding the December 2025 IPO, including an $83.3 million unit redemption to CEO Jeremy Spivey alongside ongoing related-party lease arrangements. Because the IPO closed on December 9, 2025, the Compensation Committee held zero formal meetings during fiscal 2025, leaving governance oversight newly nascent.

The bear case

CASCADIA ANALYTICS

Margin Collapse

Adjusted EBITDA margin fell to 12.4% in Q2 from 18.6% a year ago and GAAP gross margin printed 10.8%, against a full-year margin guide management cut to 16-18% from 20%+ in the same release that raised revenue guidance. The company's own account assigns the pressure to subcontracted labor and equipment rental costs in developing markets, a mix shift toward larger commercial and industrial work, accelerated G&A spending, and Southeast weather. The self-performing cost advantage the equity story rests on did not show up in the quarter.

Leverage on a Small Base

The $142M net cash position is the June 30, 2026 filed balance sheet: $197M of debt against $339M of cash. About $88.9M went out for Allied Paving on October 1, and the Hughes Brothers cash portion of $214.5M is funded from cash on hand and credit facility borrowings, with a $250M delayed-draw term loan added in September. The forward balance sheet carries debt the June anchor does not show.

Cyclical + Integration Risk

Civil and site development is cyclical, weather-exposed, and concentrated in the Southeast. Integration evidence is mixed: Q1 commentary called ALGC a strong contributor from day one, while the Q2 10-Q cut the acquired ALGC backlog intangible by $5.1M on revised backlog revenue and completion schedules. Plaintiff firms now allege scalability problems at ALGC were not disclosed; the company has not reported them.

Hughes Brothers Dilution and Earnout

The amended Hughes Brothers agreement pays $357.5M at 60% cash and 40% stock: 5,255,420 shares priced at the $27.21 signing VWAP while the market trades near $13.69. The earnout adds up to $162.5M, payable 60% in cash and 40% in stock, on Hughes adjusted EBITDA for the year to June 30, 2027, and up to 2,388,827 further shares at the maximum. Closing is expected in Q4 2026 subject to HSR clearance, so none of this is in the current share count or balance sheet, and all of it lands at once.

Litigation Overhang

Hagens Berman (September 10), Lowey Dannenberg (September 17) and Scott+Scott (October 14) have announced investigations into potential federal securities law violations, centered on the June 24 secondary offering of 4.6M shares at $73.00 and on whether project cost pressures were disclosed while margin guidance stood above 20%. No finding has been made against the company; the overhang itself keeps institutional buyers sidelined and raises the cost of the next capital raise.

Backlog Deceleration

Backlog reached a record $866M at June 30, but growth slowed to +35% year over year from +60% at March 31, and the 10-Q expects $734M to $812M of it to convert within twelve months. For a company valued on hyper-growth, a halving of backlog growth makes new awards lumpier and removes the forward cover the multiple rested on.

The strengths

Operating Quality

Small-cap civil/infrastructure contractor with thin moat (competitive bidding), 21% gross and 8.8% operating margins on FY2025, and a net cash position of $142M at June 30, 2026. Q2 2026 gross margin printed 10.8% as subcontracted labor and equipment rentals replaced self-performed work in developing markets. Cyclical, weather-exposed, no pricing power.

Recent Trend

Revenue exploding via acquisition (+114% YoY in Q2) but quality deteriorating: adj EBITDA margin collapsed 18.6% to 12.4%, GAAP gross margin printed 10.8%, EPS of $0.26 missed consensus of about $0.47, net income fell 35%, and the stock fell 36.2% in the August 11 session and 84% from its high. Seven insiders bought 221,597 shares for about $8.5M on August 14-17 at $36.26 to $40.12. Growth without profit, with securities investigations now open.

Forward Growth

Guided revenue of $880-900M with ALGC, plus SE infrastructure tailwinds and a self-performing model. Backlog of $866M is a record in dollars but growth slowed to +35% YoY from +60% in Q1. Hughes Brothers would add $220M of TTM revenue at a 25.0% adjusted EBITDA margin if it closes in Q4 2026. The margin guide was cut, integration is unproven, and civil construction is cyclical.

Valuation

DCF base $50.90 vs spot $13.69 implies 272% upside. Forward P/E 4.5x and NTM EV/EBITDA 3.5x are distressed multiples. Reverse DCF prices -20.2% revenue CAGR, below the 6.0% bear case: the market prices contraction.

Investment view

Q3 margin trajectory is the swing factor: sustained adjusted EBITDA recovery toward the guided range would validate the bull case and the base case at $50.90. The Hughes Brothers close, the earnout it eventually carries, and the litigation path decide how much of any recovery reaches current shareholders. Further erosion, or debt stress, would confirm the market's -20.2% implied contraction.

Investment view: Buy. The $52.70 blended target implies +285%, balancing the $40.00 / $50.90 / $69.00 Bear / Base / Bull outcomes.
