Investment Thesis

Pure-Play Marketplace Now. Note the old ammo profile is gone: AMMO Inc. sold its ammunition division to Olin-Winchester for $75M in Aug 2025 and rebranded as Outdoor Holding Company. What remains is GunBroker.com, the largest online firearms marketplace [8-K]. Real Turnaround Numbers. Q1 FY27: revenue +21.7% to $14.48M, adjusted EBITDA +152% to a record $7.9M, net income +$3.6M, operating cash flow +$4.4M, gross margin ~85% [8-K]. Market Prices Pessimism. At $2.27, the reverse DCF implies -2.4% CAGR, decline priced in. Our DCF base is $3.51 (+55% upside) with the bear case $2.32 still above the price. Small-cap skepticism on liquidity is warranted, but the gap is real.

The valuation uses a multi-year unlevered free cash flow DCF. The discount rate is the live CAPM rate: the 10-year Treasury yield plus beta times the market-implied equity risk premium. Terminal value is a Gordon perpetuity on terminal-year free cash flow.

Mechanics are explicit. The bridge runs revenue to EBIT to cash taxes, then adds back D&A and subtracts capex and working-capital investment to reach unlevered free cash flow. Targets are divided by diluted shares outstanding.

Trailing P/E is meaningless off a depressed base; EV is ~3.5x sales ex-cash. The DCF says the price undervalues even a modest take-rate expansion.

AOUT is the closest peer (manufacturer, different model)

No pure-play online firearms marketplace comp exists; analyst coverage is thin but constructive, with targets ~16% above the price.

The name has recovered from the transformation lows but remains well below its listing price, reflecting the long dilution of the old ammo business.

What to monitor

16-Nov-2026. Q2 FY27 Earnings (Positive): Q1 beat with +22% revenue and record adjusted EBITDA $7.9M; watch for continued GMV and take-rate expansion.

The bear case

Cyclical Demand

GunBroker revenue moves with firearm demand and NICS checks. The Virginia legislation pull-forward was explicitly described by management as a one-off that will not repeat in Q2 FY27.

Thin Liquidity

Average daily traded value is only ~$1.2M, and institutional ownership is concentrated (Balentine 14.9%, Kanen 9.9%). Building or exiting a meaningful position moves the price.

Short Transformation History

The company sold its ammo division in Aug 2025, settled Delaware litigation, and replaced leadership. The pure-play marketplace story is barely a year old, with warrants and promissory notes still outstanding from the settlement.

The strengths

Operating Quality

GunBroker.com is the dominant online firearms marketplace with real network effects, 85%+ gross margins, asset-light economics, ~$66M cash and near-zero debt (D/E 0.04). Scale is the knock: ~$53M annual revenue is tiny.

Recent Trend

Genuinely improving: revenue +21.7% YoY, GMV +18.1%, adjusted EBITDA +152% to a record $7.9M, net income flipped from a $6.5M loss to +$3.6M, operating cash flow turned positive $4.4M. Broad-based, per management.

Forward Growth

FFL transfer fees and take-rate expansion are new, real revenue streams; payments processing is next. But growth rides on NICS demand cycles, the Virginia pull-forward was explicitly one-off, and only 4 analysts cover the name.

Valuation

Trailing P/E 72.7x looks scary but earnings are off a depressed base; P/S 5.0x on $51M sales, EV roughly 3.5x ex-cash. Our DCF base $3.51 implies +55% upside and even the bear $2.32 sits above the $2.27 price. The market is pricing pessimis

Cascadia scorecard

Catalysts & Risk	Q2 earnings Nov 16 and the FFL/payment rollout are positive catalysts; the $15M buyback is a real signal. But liquidity is thin (~$1.2M daily), gun demand is cyclical, holders are concentrated (Balentine 14.9%), and the litigation-to-transformation history is short.	55

Investment view

> Q2 FY27 earnings on Nov 16, 2026 are the next test: another quarter of 15-20% GMV growth with rising take rate would pull the price toward the $3.51 DCF base. A NICS slowdown or a stalled FFL/payment rollout would compress the growth story back toward the bear case.
