BLENDED TARGET

The valuation uses a ten-year unlevered free cash flow DCF (2027-2036). The bridge runs revenue to EBIT to cash taxes, then adds back stock-based compensation and D&A and subtracts capex and working-capital investment. The EBIT margin path is solved from the FY2026 free-cash-flow anchor of $4.2B and interpolates to the 2036 margins (19.9% Bear, 23.1% Base, 27.4% Bull): it starts at a GAAP-like 19.0%, and the terminal Base margin sits above every filed GAAP year (filed peak 19.8% TTM to Q2 2026) but below the current 28.4% adjusted operating margin. The discount rate is a CAPM cost of equity (10-year Treasury plus a 0.60 beta times the market-implied equity risk premium), labelled WACC in the workbook; it is a static rate with no beta-decay schedule.

Terminal value is the average of two legs, weighted 50/50; we retain this construction and disclose both legs. The Gordon leg capitalizes 2036 free cash flow at 2.0% perpetual growth ($114.6B Bear, $152.8B Base, $209.8B Bull); the exit leg applies an EV/FCF multiple to 2036 free cash flow of 18x Bear, 22x Base and 26x Bull ($105.0B, $171.1B and $277.5B). The present value of the averaged terminal value is 61.4% of Bear, 66.8% of Base and 71.7% of Bull enterprise value. Targets are divided by 1,475M diluted shares (weighted average for Q2 2026, post-ASR).

+61% upside to the base case. A PEG near 1.0 is rare for a consistent double-digit EPS grower, though the cyber overhang earns the discount.

Large-cap device peers trade at higher multiples

BSX screens cheap versus medtech peers despite a historically superior organic growth profile. The discount reflects near-term uncertainty, not structural decline.

Near 52w low $41.38 vs high $105.65

Trading roughly 60% below its 52-week high after the guidance cut and cyber disclosure, at the low end of its historical multiple range.

What to monitor

The bear case

Cyber Incident Overhang

September 8 statement says Q3 and full-year guidance are unlikely to be met after the incident; the extent of operational impact is unknown until the October 28 revision.

WATCHMAN Structural Decline

The US WATCHMAN market slowed sharply and unexpectedly on compounding clinical evidence, shifting referral patterns. This was a core growth driver and may be structural, not cyclical.

EP Competitive Share Loss

Management did not anticipate the degree of competitive share movement in US electrophysiology. Share recapture is uncertain and expensive.

The strengths

Operating Quality

Cardiovascular device leader with 69% gross margins, GAAP operating margins expanding 13.0% to 18.0% (FY22-25), ROE 19.3%, and conservative leverage (D/E 0.43). Scale, IP and physician relationships are a real moat.

Recent Trend

Revenue grew 12.7B to 20.1B (FY22-25) but H1 2026 organic was 7% and H2 is pressured: WATCHMAN slowed sharply, EP lost US share, and management cut FY26 organic guidance to 5-6%. Trend is bending, not breaking.

Forward Growth

New COO and 3-segment structure in Jan 2027, plus double-digit growth in IC/ neuromodulation/oncology, support recovery. But WATCHMAN structural slowdown, EP competition and the cyber disruption cap near-term visibility.

Valuation

DCF base $73.94 vs spot $46.01 implies +61% upside. Forward P/E 13.1x with PEG near 1.0 is cheap vs device peers and vs own history (near 52w low). Reverse DCF implies -0.0% CAGR, well below the 3% bear case.

Cascadia scorecard

Composite score 65: Attractive. Confidence High, as of 17-Oct-2026.

Forward Growth	New COO and 3-segment structure in Jan 2027, plus double-digit growth in IC/neuromodulation/oncology, support recovery. But WATCHMAN structural slowdown, EP competition and the cyber disruption cap near-term visibility.	55
Valuation	DCF base $73.94 vs spot $46.01 implies +61% upside. Forward P/E 13.1x with PEG near 1.0 is cheap vs device peers and vs own history (near 52w low). Reverse DCF implies -0.0% CAGR, well below the 3% bear case.	76
Catalysts & Risk	Oct 28 Q3 print with the revised outlook is the clearing event. Management change and pipeline cycles are positives, but the cyber incident extent is unknown and guidance credibility is damaged. Skew is balanced near term.	55

Investment view

The Oct 28 Q3 print plus revised outlook is the swing factor: if the cyber impact is contained and the new baseline is credible, Valuation and Trend rerate quickly. Another cut would drop Forward Growth and jeopardize the Buy rating.

Investment view: Buy. The $76.80 blended target implies +67%, balancing the $52.40 / $73.94 / $106.93 Bear / Base / Bull outcomes.
